*signifies the congregation to stand, if you are able

Consider these questions from this week's scripture passage: Matthew 6:9-10

1. How does this Scripture show God's will being done on earth?
2. What connections can you draw between this Scripture and how Jesus embodied the Kingdom?
3. Different people have different ideas about the way the world is "supposed to be." How should Christians discern the way God wants the world to be?
4. How can or how could the vision of God's coming kingdom help you and your congregation find common ground and common cause with non-Christians for the purpose of more faithfully doing God's will?
